Emergency Cases

An emergency medical condition means the sudden, and at that time, an unexpected onset of a health condition that requires immediate medical treatment and/or an operation.

These are life-threatening conditions that require immediate first aid or care by a physician—serious risk to the health of the individual, serious impairment to bodily functions and serious dysfunction of any body organ or part.

If the treatment is not available, the emergency could result in weakened bodily functions, serious and lasting damage to the organs, limbs, or other body parts, or even death.

Emergency conditions include:

- Acute abdominal pain
- Severe respiratory problems or difficulty in breathing
- Fainting
- Bleeding (uncontrolled or internal)
- Sudden severe pain
- Poisoning
- Injuries (vehicular, burns, lacerations)
- Sudden facial drooping or weakness in an arm or leg
- Severe allergic reactions
- Suspected heart attack or stroke/chest pain
- Convulsion or seizure
